— BBPS MUN 2025 —

8th and 9th October

From The Principal's Desk:

"We may have different religions, different languages, different colored skin, but we all belong to one human race." — Kofi Annan Individualised holistic education that is rooted in the rich culture and traditions of the country, while nurturing global citizenship, forms the basis of the educational ethos of Bal Bharati Public School, GRH Marg. Penning this message on the occasion of the Annual Interschool BBPS MUN 2025 is, therefore, a matter of great pride and joy for me. The resounding success of this event stands as a testament to the brilliance, diligence, and global consciousness of our young delegates.

Model United Nations, in its very essence, is far more than a platform for debate — it is a journey of discovery, dialogue, and diplomacy. Through MUNs, students not only learn to become articulate orators and confident speakers, but they also delve deep into the pressing global challenges that shape our world. They develop a profound understanding of international issues — from climate change to economic inequality, from technological ethics to Artificial Intelligence exploration — and learn that true solutions are not born out of conflict, but through conversation, cooperation, and compassion. MUNs, I believe, teach the invaluable lesson that peace is not the absence of disagreement, but the art of resolving differences through dialogue. The MUN experience inspires every participant to shift their focus from "me" to "we," realising that collaboration, empathy, and mutual respect are the cornerstones of a truly progressive global society. Our delegates — the future citizens of the world — must remember that the problems confronting humanity today can only be overcome if we join hands as equals. We all share one home, one world, one Earth. It is our collective responsibility to preserve it and make it a place where peace and progress walk hand in hand. Through this annual event, BBPS MUN, we consistently endeavour to nurture in our learners the values of understanding, unity, and responsible leadership. In doing so, we are shaping not just eloquent speakers, but compassionate changemakers - possessing awareness of global cultures and diplomatic skills. They'd be empowered to lead the world toward harmony and hope confidently, through mutual collaboration, consideration and conversations. To conclude, I'd like to remind all our young delegates that participation in MUN, beyond being a prestigious competitive event, is an authentic learning opportunity. Let us all earnestly work together and contribute towards creating a new paradigm of "humancentric globalisation" for the world of tomorrow... Best wishes to all the delegates and the entire BBPS MUN team for the success of all your noble endeavours!

From The Vice Principal's Desk:

Too often, students stand on the sidelines of conversations about policy creation and implementation. Yet your experiences with curriculum, school policy, or community issues offer essential insights that adults may sometimes overlook. By engaging in policy discussions, you are not merely highlighting problems—you are actively contributing to solutions. Your participation goes beyond voicing concerns; it is about shaping the world you will inherit. When you contribute thoughtfully, you help ensure that policies are fair, effective, and forward-thinking.

Your involvement sends a powerful message: you are invested in building a better future. While Student Councils serve as formal channels for your ideas and feedback, forums such as Model United Nations (MUNs) broaden perspectives and ensure voices from every corner are heard, regardless of background or circumstance. This year's BBPSMUN conference was a resounding success, exemplifying what can be achieved when committed young individuals come together to engage in thoughtful, constructive debate. The event served not only as a platform for honing debate and negotiation skills, but also as a vibrant arena for diverse viewpoints to converge, fostering mutual respect and innovative problem solving. The constructive atmosphere and robust participation made it a defining moment for student engagement and leadership development. MUNs strive to provide you with safe spaces for dialogue, training in research, advocacy, data interpretation, and effective writing. These experiences empower you to analyze feedback, convert ideas into concrete proposals, and take actionable steps. It is your responsibility to speak up with intention, clarity, and care. Challenge the status quo while listening to diverse perspectives. Propose ideas grounded in experience and evidence, and partner with educators, families, and community members to turn aspirations into action. Your voice matters—and we are committed to supporting you in amplifying it, every step of the way. Wishing everyone many more such thought-provoking and action-oriented MUN conferences, where diverse voices converge to shape compassionate, effective solutions.

CONVENERS

“Peace cannot be kept by force; it can only be achieved by understanding.” — Albert Einstein The Inter-School BBPSMUN 2025 Conference in its 15th edition, was a vibrant celebration of youthful diplomacy, dialogue, and determination. This year it unfolded with the thought-provoking theme “Voices of Today, Policies for Tomorrow.” bringing together some of the brightest young minds to deliberate upon issues that define our populace today. In a world constantly navigating the complexities of security, human rights, and governance, the conference provided an ideal platform for students to step into the shoes of global leaders, policymakers, and journalists, echoing conviction, empathy, and vision — reaffirming that the youth of today are architects of change.

The conference featured four dynamic committees — the United Nations General Assembly (UNGA-DISEC), United Nations Human Rights Council (UNHRC), Lok Sabha, and the International Press (IP). Each committee buzzed with purposeful discussions as delegates addressed pressing concerns ranging from addressing weaponisation of AI and ensuring ethical use of emerging technologies in warfare, protecting human rights and accountability of states for human rights abuses against minority & indigenous communities, and deliberation on the formulation and implementation of a uniform civil code, with a focus on ensuring constitutional compliance. The International Press, with its keen reporting and editorial insight, captured every debate and deliberation, adding depth and perspective to the proceedings. The spirit of diplomacy shone throughout the sessions as delegates engaged in constructive dialogue, formed alliances, and sought common ground beyond differences. It was inspiring to witness young delegates navigating complex global issues with maturity and balance, demonstrating commendable skills in negotiation, critical thinking, and consensus-building. Beyond the formal debates, the MUN experience fostered camaraderie, mutual respect, and lifelong learning. The laughter in corridors, the intensity of committee sessions, and the sense of teamwork during crises all contributed to making this event both intellectually enriching and emotionally fulfilling. As the closing ceremony recognized the Best Delegates, High Commendations and Special Mentions in Committees for their exemplary participation, it is apparent that, the two-day Conference stands as a proud testament to what can be achieved when young voices are heard, valued, and empowered. Their ideas, rooted in hope and guided by empathy, reminds that the future is unfolding – shaped by the confidence and compassion of our youth Indeed, the voices of today will write the policies of tomorrow.

(COMMITTEE PROCEEDING)

The United Nations General Assembly – Disarmament and International Security Committee (DISEC) convened at BBPS MUN 2025 to deliberate upon the agenda “Addressing Weaponisation of AI and Ensuring Ethical Use of Emerging Technologies in Warfare.”

The committee sessions witnessed an engaging exchange of ideas, as delegates tackled the complex intersection of artificial intelligence, international security, and ethics. The debates centered around ensuring accountability in AI-enabled weapon systems, preventing misuse of autonomous technologies, and promoting frameworks for responsible innovation in defense sectors.

Delegates proposed a variety of solutions including the establishment of an international monitoring body for AI-based weapon development, transparency measures among member nations, and the drafting of ethical guidelines for AI research in military applications.

After extensive debate and consensus-building, the house successfully passed one draft resolution that emphasized cooperation, verification mechanisms, and adherence to the UN Charter's principles of peace and security.

The Executive Board appreciated the delegates' technical insight, diplomatic engagement, and adherence to parliamentary procedure. The committee truly embodied the spirit of Model United Nations — combining innovation with responsibility to address one of the most critical issues of our era.

UNHRC

(COMMITTEE PROCEEDING)

The United Nations Human Rights Council (UNHRC) convened at BBPS MUN 2025 to deliberate upon the agenda “Protecting Human Rights and Accountability of States for Human Rights Abuses Against Minority and Indigenous Communities.”

Throughout the sessions, the committee witnessed passionate and thought-provoking discussions as delegates addressed the critical issue of systemic discrimination, marginalization, and state-led human rights violations. Delegates showcased in-depth understanding and empathy while formulating solutions rooted in justice, equality, and international cooperation.

The debate focused on strengthening the Universal Periodic Review mechanism, ensuring legal accountability for human rights violations, and enhancing support systems for marginalized communities through education, healthcare, and political inclusion.

Multiple working papers were drafted and merged after rigorous negotiation, culminating in the passage of a comprehensive draft resolution by majority vote. The resolution emphasized preventive diplomacy, transparency in state governance, and the creation of monitoring frameworks to safeguard minority and indigenous rights globally. The Executive Board commended the delegates for their diplomacy, cooperation, and commitment to the principles of human dignity and equality. The UNHRC at BBPS MUN 2025 stood as a testament to the delegates' ability to balance empathy with pragmatism — echoing the true essence of the United Nations.

LOK SABHA

(COMMITTEE PROCEEDING)

The Lok Sabha Committee at BBPS MUN 2025 convened to deliberate upon the agenda “Formulation and Implementation of a Uniform Civil Code, with a Focus on Ensuring Constitutional Compliance.”

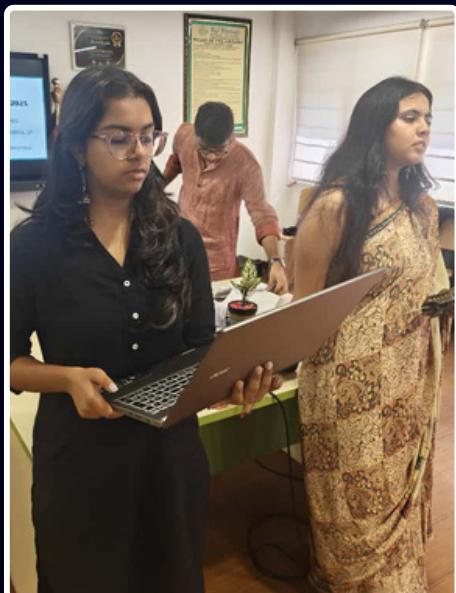

The committee engaged in dynamic and insightful discussions on one of the most debated topics in the contemporary Indian socio-political landscape. Delegates examined the constitutional, legal, and cultural implications of a Uniform Civil Code (UCC), bringing forth diverse perspectives that reflected the pluralistic nature of Indian democracy.

The debate revolved around achieving a balance between uniformity in personal laws and respect for religious and cultural diversity. Delegates proposed multiple frameworks for phased implementation, codification of personal laws, and establishment of review bodies to ensure that reforms align with constitutional principles of equality and justice. Several working papers were introduced, each addressing distinct facets of the issue such as gender equality, minority rights, and judicial oversight. After detailed deliberations and constructive negotiations, one consolidated resolution was passed by consensus, emphasizing the need for awareness, inclusivity, and constitutional adherence in the formulation of a UCC.

The Executive Board appreciated the delegates for their analytical depth, parliamentary conduct, and commitment to democratic values. The Lok Sabha at BBPS MUN 2025 truly embodied the essence of legislative debate – reasoned argument, respect for diversity, and a shared pursuit of national harmony.

IP (COMMITTEE REPORT)

The International Press (IP) at BBPS MUN 2025 served as the journalistic pillar of the conference, documenting the proceedings of all committees with professionalism, creativity, and integrity. Acting as journalists, photographers, and caricaturists, the members of the IP captured the spirit of debate, diplomacy, and deliberation that defined the event.

Throughout the conference, the journalists produced articulate and engaging articles that provided insightful coverage of committee discussions, highlighting key moments, notable speeches, and diplomatic breakthroughs. The photojournalists documented the event through striking visuals, preserving the liveliness of the sessions and the enthusiasm of the participants. Meanwhile, the caricaturists added a touch of humor and artistic flair, offering a lighter perspective on the intense debates that unfolded across the committees.

The IP team also prepared press releases, conducted delegate interviews, and presented creative reports that reflected not just the substance, but also the spirit of BBPS MUN 2025. Their dedication to accuracy, originality, and presentation contributed significantly to the overall success and vibrancy of the conference.

The Executive Board commended the International Press for its professionalism, creativity, and commitment to maintaining the highest standards of media representation within the Model United Nations framework.
